ELDRIDGE ATHERTON

Skips Out and Leaves a Confiding Young Wife.

Married in the East, and Deserted Among Strangers in This City.

One of the Saddest Stories That Was Ever Chronicled.

She Falls to Find Mrs. Watson, and in Despair She Writes to Her Old Mother—The Man Who Ruined Her is Well Known Here.

About three weeks ago, a bright-looking young lady aged about 16 years, called at the Police Court and asked the clerk to kindly give her the address of Mrs. Watson, of the Girls' Home. He complied, writing the address on a slip of paper, and with profuse thanks the lady left the Court on her way to Mrs. Watson's residence, followed by a TIMES reporter, who fancied there might be some circumstances in connection with her visit to that lady that would furnish the grounds for a newspaper item.

Upon arriving at Mrs. Watson's, the young lady found to her disappointment that she was not at home, nor would she be there for a few hours. It happened, however, that in the house there was another lady, and to her the inquirer was referred. For a moment she appeared as though she would tell her story to this lady, but presently she stated that she wanted to see Mrs. Watson alone, and refusing to leave her address went away, promising to return again.

Coming back down town after her unsuccessful visit to Mrs. Watson's, the girl, who was neatly but inexpensively dressed, walked to the corner of Main and First streets, and there taking a seat in a car was carried out to Grand avenue, where she left the car, and walking a short distance down that street entered one of the small cottages recently built. The reporter, who had closely followed her to her destination, noticing a sign of "Furnished Rooms to Rent" on the fence near the front door, waited a few moments until his appearance would awaken no suspicion, fearing he had been seen on the car in which the girl rode from town, knocked at the door and asked to see the rooms spoken of on the sign. An elderly lady answered his knock, and in response to the reporter's request stated that he could walk in and see the rooms, but they would not be ready for a new tenant for a few days, being at the present time occupied by a young married couple who had rented them for a month. The old lady said her name was Albrecht, and that she was a widow with a grown daughter, so that the rooms were very well suited to an invalid or one who required to live in a very quiet neighborhood. The reporter said they were just the rooms he was in search of as regarded location, but asked to see their interior to judge for himself as to whether they were furnished to his taste.

At once turning to a side door Mrs. Albrecht tapped, and on being asked to walk in stated that she had brought a young gentleman who wanted to look at the rooms. With this the door opened and there stepped out the same young lady who had been in quest of Mrs. Watson. With something very like tears in her eyes she whispered in the ear of Mrs. Albrecht, saying something about having paid enough money to last at least a week longer.

"Yes, my dear," said Mrs. Albrecht, "I know that, but I don't think your husband will be back by that time, and you know I must rent my rooms as soon as possible to parties who are able to pay, or I will have to go short of food myself."

With this remark on the part of the landlady the reporter and that lady entered the room, which the girl left to them, going into another part of the house in the meantime. As soon as she had gone Mrs. Albrecht turned to the reporter and said:

"You wouldn't think to look at that young girl that she was a married woman, would you?"

The reporter acknowledged with surprise that he certainly would not, thinking it more likely that the girl was a student in one of the higher schools or colleges.

"But she is," continued the landlady, "and, to tell you the truth, I am afraid that she has 'brought her pigs to a bad market,' as they used to say back in York State when I was a little one."

"I don't understand you," answered the scribe. "Do you mean that she lives unhappily with her husband?"

"No, I don't. I mean to tell the truth. She doesn't live with her husband at all."

"But you told me the rooms were at present occupied by a young married couple?"

"They were rented by a young married couple about three weeks ago, and the man, who stated his name was Eldredge Atherton, and that he was a commercial traveler, paid me a month's rent in advance, and they moved in here with a few things of their own, which Mrs. Atherton, that little thing who went out of the room as you came in, told me she had bought previous to their marriage. For a week they seemed to get along splendidly, minding their own business and never bothering me or making any complaints, though I could easily see that what they had told me about having been married some time was all nonsense, as any one could see with half an eye that they were newly married, and the girl thought there was no one in the world like her husband. At the end of the first week Mr. Atherton told his wife that he would have to leave her for a few days, perhaps a week, but that he would write and let her know how he was getting on, and if he managed to secure the situation he expected to obtain in San Francisco, he would send down after her, and they would reside in that city. Well, every day from the second day after his departure, his poor little wife would go down to the postoffice in the hope of hearing from him, but if you'll believe me, from the day he left here until the present time not a word has she heard of or from him, and the poor little thing is almost frantic. He left her with very little money, and that little is almost exhausted, and she doesn't know what to do to earn more. I am of the opinion that the scoundrel has deserted her and will never come back or write to her."

The reporter expressed great commiseration for the poor girl, and asked Mrs. Albrecht if she thought Mrs. Atherton would tell her history to any person, but she said she thought not, as she had steadily refused to say anything of the past history of either her husband or herself to Mrs. Albrecht or that lady's daughter, with whom she had got to be very friendly.

The matter being one in which the details were of a nature more to be guessed at than traced up, the scribe dropped it with a sigh and turned to other matters of more pressing moment. Yesterday afternoon, however, Mrs. Albrecht met him on the street, and taking him by the arm told him the rooms he looked at were vacant now and if he wanted them he could have them. As the lady was waiting for the electric car, in the tent on the corner of First and Los Angeles streets, the reporter asked her what had become of Mrs. Atherton. "Ah! poor soul," said Mrs. Albrecht, "I am afraid that her life is ruined. I think I told you of her husband's leaving town with the intention of getting a situation in San Francisco. Well, he never came back

The route of the procession was, as stated in yesterday's TIMES, and after the procession a reception at the Opera-house was held.

EXERCISES AT THE OPERA-HOUSE.

The opening remarks at the Opera-house were made by Gen. John R. Mathews, after which the Odd Fellow ode was sung.

The Grand Opera-house was packed both above and below by a fashionably-dressed audience to listen to remarks by the distinguished speakers. The address of welcome on behalf of the city was made by Mayor Workman, who said:

HON. W. H. WORKMAN'S ADDRESS.

Grand Sire White, Deputy Grand Sire Underwood, Ladies and Gentlemen: It is with feelings of greatest pleasure I fulfill the pleasant duty of, on behalf of the city, welcoming you to Los Angeles. The task is not hard which has been delegated to me, and how I shall fulfill my mission you will be better able to judge after I am through. On behalf of the citizens of this city, I extend to you a hearty welcome. Though not a member of your great order, I recognize its great influence for good and evil, the benefits and favors it confers on the poor and needy. I admire its principles, and its precepts have my hearty admiration. The boundless good it has done and will do, not only to members of your order, but also to the community at large, are a credit not only to yourselves, but to humanity at large. It proudly presses onward in the march of friendship, love and truth, and its hands are always stretched out to support the weak. I say God speed you in your noble work; may its principles continue to elevate humanity; may its labors on behalf of mankind be served for good; may it continue to do good until the misery which it alleviates is obliterated from the face of the earth. [Applause.]

The Ninth Commandment can in no way be better illustrated than by the general betterment of the condition of the masses, by making it possible for all on this great earth to be clothed and fed. The I.O.O.F. is the grandest of those organizations which makes the alleviation of human misery a study, and it receives in its good work the approval of all good citizens, be they members of your order or not.

This is a land of sunshine and of flowers, of the vine and the fig tree, and one would suppose that distress, destitution and suffering ought not to be known here; but I have been told by a member of your order that even here there is no Utopia, and your order expends in relief alone, in Los Angeles, $1500 annually.

The Mayor then gave a historical sketch of the city, tracing it from the settlement of the Spaniards to the present day. How it has grown step by step, fast and sure, from a hamlet of 1100 people, in 1841, to a metropolitan city of 65,000 inhabitants, in 1887. The speaker was several times applauded and the delegates seemed to be especially interested when the Mayor referred to Los Angeles' fast and substantial growth.

The response was made by Grand Sire John H. White, of New York, who gave a brief history of Odd Fellowship, its aims and objects and its rapid growth.

Hon. John R. Dupuy, on behalf of the Odd Fellows of Los Angeles, then addressed the audience. His address was most eloquent throughout, and his reference to his childhood in Kentucky and his acquaintance of Gen. Underwood in that State, was frequently applauded.

The response to this address was made by Gen. and ex-Gov. Underwood, of Kentucky, Deputy Grand Sire. The following are extracts of Gen. Underwood's address:

"On behalf of my comrades of this delegation, I thank you from the bottom of my heart for your cordial and enthusiastic reception. We came not for new worlds to conquer, but that we have conquered this section of one, [applause] your enthusiastic reception shows. I formed the idea of coming to your city over a year ago, but could not carry out one of the great schemes of my life until after the adjournment of the Grand Lodge at Denver. I and my comrades are here, and you seem to know it. [Applause.] I am now joining the waters of the great Atlantic with those of the mighty Pacific. It remained for me to come to this coast to complete the grand circuit, and I am here. The desert just east of you reminds one of a purgatory, but your city is a paradise. The angels were here, and to them (the ladies) we have surrendered unconditionally [Great laughter and applause]. The speaker told how during the war he happened to be on the wrong side and a Union soldier who was his bitterest enemy met him one night between the two battle fields near Bowling Green Ky. There had always existed an animosity between them and the one had sworn to kill the other as soon as they might meet. When they did meet his opponent came to him and frankly extending his hand said, "let us bury our quarrel and be brothers, and we were" added the speaker for after the war we both belonged to the same lodge.

This closed the exercises, and as the large throng filed out of the house cheer after cheer rent the air for the distinguished visitors.

An excursion to Pasadena is the programme for today, and a grand social and hop at Armory Hall this evening.

Armory Hall, the headquarters, is tastefully decorated. There is a splendid display of California fruits in the large hall, which was arranged by the Rebekah Lodges of this city.

The next grand meeting takes places in Los Angeles in September of 1888. The meeting will bring over 20,000 people into the city.

SANTA ANA.

Its Wonderful Growth and Prospects—A Bright Future.

Next to the phenomenal growth of Los Angeles, the growth of the city of Santa Ana ranks in the series of wonders that have made Southern California a wonderland.

The town now contains some 5000 inhabitants. In its business center every character of trade and industry is represented. Its school facilities are fine, and churches of every denomination invite the religiously disposed.

Perhaps nothing could better prove the life and vim of the place than the fact that one daily and three weekly papers find profitable existence there.

If Santa Ana's growth keeps on at the present rate Pasadena will have to rustle to preserve her position as the second city in the county.

The endless resources of the Santa Ana Valley are bound to attract and fix there a dense population. In course of time the city of Santa Ana will turn her attention to manufactures, and her growth will spread until she absorbs Orange and Tustin, with Olive and Anaheim as suburbs.

Almost a Wreck.

What promised at one time to be another of those too frequent street car catastrophes happened yesterday morning on South Main street. The car had just arrived at about the middle of the crossing of Fifth and Main streets, when a runaway team, drawing a heavy lumber wagon, came down Fifth street at breakneck speed, apparently making direct for the car. The runaways had got up such a fearful momentum that nothing could have prevented the most horrible consequences in the event of a collision, when the driver of the car, with the utmost coolness, lashed his horse until the poor brute literally sprang out of the way just in time to let the runaways pass the car, missing the rear end by almost a hair's breadth. After passing the car the team endeavored to turn on its own ground, and in the effort threw itself onto the sidewalk, where the horses lay until the bystanders released them. One is so severely cut about the legs that it will have to be killed, but the other came off comparatively unhurt. The only other damage done was the tongue of the wagon was snapped off short. The ownership of the runaway team could not be learned, but the driver's name is Edward Walters.

The Courts.

The following business was transacted in Judge Cheney's court yesterday:

The motion for a new trial for Dan Sheeley was continued to October 11th.

The contempt cases of Switzer and Price were continued to October 1st.

JUSTICE AUSTIN.

The complaint for threats against A. D. Brock was dismissed.

The charge against D. P. Heminez, of receiving stolen property, was dismissed on motion of the District Attorney.

JUSTICE TANEY.

The examination of A. McDonald for assault with a deadly weapon, was set for October 3d, at 10 a.m., with bail fixed at $500.

Departures by Steamer.

Following is a list of passengers who sailed by steamer Queen of the Pacific yesterday: L. L. Fargo, Mrs. A. Helling, Mrs. C. W. Green, Miss M. Green, Mrs. E. Green, M. Morrisy, Miss M. Cuzner, Mrs. J. Fowler, J. E. Stingletary and wife, J. O. Mackey, Rev. R. S. Cantino and wife, A. E. McDonald, Dr. A. P. Poaps, Miss N. A. Sloan, J. Dieperleek, Rev. G. N. Spencer, William Green, D. de C. Miller and Mrs. James Gunstead.

Mrs. Weyse Dead.

Mrs. C. A. S. Weyse, mother of O. G. and R. G. Weyse, well-known merchants and capitalists of this city, died at her home yesterday. Mrs. Weyse was one of the oldest settlers, having come to this city in 1856.

Again We Give Away a Valuable Lot.

Three times have we given away one of our valuable Garvanzo lots. Each day has seen their increase in value. Each day has seen Garvanzo grow larger and more valuable to homeseekers. Our method of distributing these choice lots is strictly fair in every respect. With each dollar spent in our establishment, we give a printed and numbered ticket, entitling the holder to a chance in this lot. On Monday evening, October 31, 1887, the drawing will take place, under the control and supervision of the ticket holders themselves. We have sold the entire tract with the exception of the few lots reserved for our customers. We made a handsome profit out of our Garvanzo purchase of some months ago, and we feel that we can afford to be generous to our patrons.

We stake our business reputation upon the honesty of this drawing and the value of these lots.

Every one knows Garvanzo.

Every one knows Lewis Brothers, and some one will get a lot for nothing this month.

LEWIS BROTHERS,
101 and 103 North Spring street.

Every Purchaser

At San Diego, or every purchaser on the Otay, will receive a ticket for the drawing of a fine upright piano. A committee will have the matter in charge. Every purchaser will deposit $20 on the fall of the hammer and at that time you will receive your ticket for the drawing. John C. Bell will sell 500 lots that day on the Otay. Train leaves Wednesday, October 5th, at 7:55 a.m.

Surveyors, Notice.

Bids will be received up to 3 o'clock p.m., Tuesday, October 4th, for subdividing into ten to forty-acre farms 5000 acres or more, for the Lankershim Ranch Land and Water Company.

The Highest Authority.

William Hammond Hall, the State Engineer, who had had years of experience in land and water in California, after a full examination of the Rancho Ex-Mission of San Fernando, reports to the owners of the property, the Porter Land and Water Company, as follows: "You have 10,000 to 11,000 acres, and perhaps more, of really first-rate valley lands for cultivation, with soils not to be surpassed for fertility and desirability by those of any section; lying very favorably for irrigation, and in a neighborhood whose climate is well-adapted to the best class of agricultural, horticultural and vineyard productions usual in this country." Mr. Hall has been employed by the company to devise a complete plan for the irrigation of the, tract with the waters flowing from San Fernando, Sycamore and Pacoima creeks, and from the immense cienegas located upon the ranch, and the public may expect the finest water system in California upon this property. Office, room No. 9, Los Angeles National Bank building, corner First and Spring streets. A man always at San Fernando, with conveyances, to show the property.

CLIFTON TRACT LOTS

HAVE SOLD RAPIDLY.

Only a few are left. The Mappa tract lots are all sold, and only eight of those $300 lots and five of those $450 to $1100 houses and lots remain unsold.

The success is owing to nearness to street cars, water, and because they are so very cheap. They have sold off without noise or parade, for—

Not a drum was heard, not a brass band note,
As our lots on the market I hurried;
No auctioneer tired his eloquent throat
With his accent and emphasis varied.

I said to the people, the lots are all nice—
Through the public prints I told them;
When they saw them they said, "You're correct, Mr. Peck;"
And right on their merits I sold them.

So they counted their money and laid it down,
Convinced of the truth of my story,
And I gave them their deeds and my blessing and then
I left them alone in their glory.

Our Fire Department.

While a city may be justly proud of its fire department, it can never afford to reach that point of self-satisfaction when its vigilance may slumber in the pleasant belief that the corps is complete and perfect.

The truth is, a fire department like an army, can never reach and remain at a point of perfection. It may move on, or it may fall back. Constant drill and unrelaxing discipline are the only things that can keep either corps up to a point of excellence.

Like an army, the effectiveness of a fire department is wholly dependent on its officers. As to the army, we have schools and colleges wherein men are educated and trained in the art of commanding. With our fire departments, however, the only training school known to the corps is—practice.

THE TIMES is impelled to indulge in the foregoing reflections by reason of the statement that the City Council will probably appoint a Chief Engineer of the Fire Department at its meeting next Monday.

In making that appointment, the Council will, as a matter of course, use its best judgment. It will cast all considerations aside, save those that pertain to the successful management of the Los Angeles Fire Department. The city should have a steady, able-bodied, experienced fireman for chief, and none other should receive the appointment.

In another column will be found the petition of the Los Angeles Underwriters, which will be presented to the Council next Monday. The petition asks for the promotion of J. A. Moriarity, the present assistant engineer.

The insurance men of this city are, perhaps, more actually interested in the well-doing of our fire department than any other particular element. Hence, THE TIMES is inclined to view with deference, if not with favor, their petition, and in all probability the subject matter will be so regarded by the Council. THE TIMES agrees with the petitioners on the subject of promotion. Since expert firemen are only made by long service and practical experience, the best and ablest should always be kept in the line of promotion, and when vacancies occur they should be forwarded—not for their own sake, but for sake of the great interests entrusted to them.

We find that Mr. Moriarity is an able-bodied man, 37 years of age and married. He is a native of Ohio, served in the fire department of Omaha, served ten years in the department of Virginia City; served as assistant engineer in the department of Tombstone, and for some time has been assistant engineer of this department. We have never heard any complaint of him.

Judicial Subservience—Chief Justice Field, for Example.

Under the caption, "Subservient Officials and Courts," the Herald of yesterday morning indulged in some severe and well-merited strictures on Jay Gould and his methods of watering stocks, buying ludges and controlling legislatures. We have not a word to say in extenuation of Gould or of the "dumb driven cattle" in high official places who allow themselves to be purchased by him. But when the Herald attempts to fasten all of this knavery and corruption upon the Republican party exclusively, its virtuous wrath is transformed into partisan bigotry. Unfortunately, knavery and corruption have no special predilection for any party; if they did the high-minded people of the country could jump upon it with both feet and stamp it out. People who have big schemes to work are not over nice about the tools they employ—do not inquire whether the tools be Democratic or Republican—the only question being: Are they serviceable? Looking back over the long line of officials in the State of California who have in succession proven subservient to the great railroad and other scheming monopolies, will the Herald dare to say that the Republicans predominate? By no means. Some Republicans have fallen down and some Democrats, but whoever they were and whatever they were, they were dishonest men and unworthy the confidence of either party. When both the Democratic and Republican parties arise in wrath and stamp such cattle to earth, there will be a chance for honest government, and not before.

And now that the politics of subservient courts is under discussion, how about Chief Justice Field, of the Supreme Court of the United States? Here is a man who occupies an exalted official position, and who stands high in the councils of his party—a man who has been repeatedly mentioned as a Democratic candidate for the Presidency of the United States. Anybody who has observed the course of this man for the past ten years and noted the bent of his decisions, knows that he is the unfailing friend of the Central-Southern Pacific Railway corporation. Whenever a question affecting this corporation comes before him, the result is very easily foreshadowed. Only a few days ago he rendered his last decision in their favor, to the effect that the corrupt practices of the railroad officials could not legally be laid bare by investigation—not even by a railway commission instituted by the Government at Washington, for that very purpose. Justice Field would shield his railroad protégés behind his bulwark of the law, even though he were obliged to override the authority of Congress and the President to do so. When one of the Associate Justices ventures to file an opinion dissenting from that of Justice Field, that would-be arbiter of the Nation's interests, turns upon him with a charge of "unpardonable affrontery." This high and mighty Justice cannot brook even a dissenting opinion.

With a more than good assurance of what the result will be in the Court of last resort—the highest tribunal of the Nation—the railroad managers are encouraged to override every measure designed for their just control, and they remain practically the dictators of the country. The Supreme Justiceship furnishes them the key to the situation.

We see that some telegraphic correspondent has taken upon himself to deny that Justice Field participated in a banquet tendered him by Leland Stanford on the very evening after the filing of his late decision. We do not pretend to say whether there is any truth in the report or not, but we do know, that in former times, on as notable occasions as this, Field has been accused of being fêted and feasted by the railway magnates, and he and his friends have not dared to deny the charge. When Chief Justice Field dies (as die some time he must) the country will draw a sigh of relief, and the Southern Pacific Company should sit in sackcloth and ashes, for it will then have lost the best friend it ever had.

Chief Justice Taney will always rank as one of the ablest jurors of the country, but to his name will attach the overshadowing infamy of the Dred Scott decision. He was willing to subvert the principles of human rights in order to pander to a powerful iniquity. Chief Justice Field will go down to his grave with a like infamy hanging over him.

In the face of such an example it is not well for the Herald to be too rampant in charging political and judicial subserviency upon the Republican party.

A Warning.

The report of an accident that happened to a boy who jumped recklessly from a cable car the other day, calls to mind a warning which ought to be spoken to parents. Along the line of the Temple-street cable, especially, there seems to be a set of boys who are disposed to tempt Fate to the uttermost. It is not unusual to see an urchin take his stand on the track in front of a dummy and find out how near he can let it approach before he moves off. A careful gripman will occasionally bring his train to a standstill rather than incur the danger of running over one of these little imps. But somed ay there may be a gripman in charge who is not so careful, and a boy may tarry a little too long, or his foot may slip, and then think of the result! A poor little body mangled and a horrible death or injury for life! If parents will take this matter in hand and administer a little eucalyptus-switch tea to their boys when they catch them at these pranks, and others equally dangerous, they will perhaps save themselves some awful heartaches a little later.

ANARCHIST REIFGROBNER of Chicago says: "These men will never hang, and if they do there will not be as much left of Chicago as the great fire left." And Anarchist Max Stoehr of St. Louis says: "This country will see some terrible deeds of vengeance if these men are hung. Acts like that which shook the city of Chicago last spring, will be an every-day occurrence." Johann Most says "the hanging of these men must not be allowed to take place peaceably," that "the workingmen must arm themselves and show their military strength and hail the social revolution." The Arbeiter Zeitung of Milwaukee, anarchist organ, says: "We will teach the capitalistic class what this means. They will regret the day when that verdict was confirmed." The American people are not scared by such bluster as this. The anarchist-murderers had better hang.

JUDGE JAMES G. MAGUIRE has left for New York, where he goes to stump the State for the Georgeite party.

Judge Maguire was elected by the Democrats. He is paid by the people to perform the duties of Superior Judge; but instead of honestly serving the people and honestly earning his salary, he slopes to New York to air his eloquence, and to do so on the people's time and money.

The Assistant Secretary of the Stock Board a Defaulter.

Suit to Force the Nevada Bank to Carry Out Contracts of the Late Wheat Deal—Arrival of Guatemala's Banished Bishop.

By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] United States District Judge Hoffman said, in an interview today in regard to the statement recently made by Justice Field concerning the filing of a dissenting opinion by him in the Stanford case: "I am loth to believe that Justice Field has been correctly reported. In effect, he accuses me of an act of judicial impertinence. It is true I was on the Circuit Bench during the arguments in that case; it is also true that I was not there when the opinions were handed in. But it was known to Judge Sawyer before then that I could not concur. He asked me to do so, but I could not consistently. My intentions were perfectly well known to my brothers at that time. I am not aware either that I have been guilty of any impropriety in dissenting. I was asked to go on the bench, as I have often done before. In regard to the opinion itself, it represents entirely my ideas on the subject. I cannot conceive that Congress has no right to investigate matters which involve the welfare of 60,000,000 people. I have due respect for the private rights of citizens, but in public matters, I think the Pacific Railway Commission should have the means to enforce its questions. The rights of witnesses are to be respected, of course, but no one will claim that any person on the stand can decline to answer without cause."

A WELL-CONNECTED EMBEZZLER.

A warrant has been issued for William W. Bausman, assistant secretary of the San Francisco Stock and Exchange Board and also of the Associated Stock Brokers, charging him with embezzlement of funds belonging to the board and association. It was rumored that Bausman was leading rather a fast life and officials of the board determined to investigate his accounts. The result shows him to be $1200 short. About $600 is owing to the board and the same amount to the association. They are fully protected, however, as they hold bonds for $2000 each, given by the Pacific Surety Company, who will prosecute Bausman. The latter was a nephew of the late Senator Miller and is otherwise well connected. Previous to his present occupation he held the position of chief clerk of the treasury under Sub-Treasurer Spalding.

SUING THE NEVADA BANK.

The liability of the Nevada Bank to fulfill contracts, written and verbal, made by George L. Brander, is about to be tested by Blum, Baldwin & Girvan. The action which, it is said, is to be brought, arises out of the charter of the British ship, Province, to load wheat for Cork. A few days before the final collapse of the clique, Blum, Baldwin & Girvan chartered the ship for 30s. per ton. The agreement was made with Brander to load Nevada Bank grain, it being understood that the business should be transacted by the charterer. It is said now that the bank will not fulfill the contract, it being claimed that Brander was not authorized to make such arrangements. Blum, Baldwin & Girvan hold to the contrary view.

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] United States Marshal Dunlap arrived from Los Angeles today with a warrant for Sam Moli, the cigar dealer, and Thomas Welter, late steward of the Mexican steamer Carlos Pacheco. They are accused by the Federal Grand Jury at Los Angeles of smuggling.

The Marshal also arrested J. G. Stultz, lessee of the Leach Opera-house in this city, on the charge of harboring a deserter from the United States army. The complaint is made by an ex-employé of Stultz, and the story is that two years ago while in New Mexico he took in his employ a man who said that he was a deserter. For two years he played in Stultz's orchestra, when he was apprehended and sentenced to two years in the military prison at Ft. Leavenworth. Stultz claims that his arrest is a piece of spite work on the part of his late employé.

THE GALLOWS.

Lee Sare Bo Suffers the Death Penalty—He Protests Innocence to the Last and Dies Easily.

By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] Lee Sare Bo was hanged in the jailyard at noon today, for the murder of Chu Ah Kit, a fellow countryman. Bo passed a restless night, and arose from his bed early this morning. He lay on the cot two hours during the night and wept incessantly, and when the tears ceased to flow he endeavored to cast off bitter reflections by indulging in prayer. He gave up all hope of a respite last night. He dressed this morning in a nervous manner, and when breakfast was brought to the cell he firmly declined to receive any food. A clothier arrived at 8 o'clock and took his measurement for a suit of clothes.

At 10 o'clock it was found necessary to change the drop, but the noise did not have the least effect on Bo, and for fully an hour he sat motionless, reading a prayer book. He then became uneasy, as Father Galliano had not been with him since last night, and a message was sent to St. Ignatius' Church, asking the Father to call at the jail as early as possible. The only consolation the murderer seemed to find was in religious works, and he prayed long and fervently.

RELATES HIS HISTORY.

He then commenced giving a history of his life to the death watch, and broke down completely when he spoke of his father and mother. He expressed a wish to live until he could again hear from his father, who is living in China, and the recollection of the manner in which he neglected his parents when he was free, served to depress him. The jailer turned his thoughts aside from home by advising him to pray to God for strength to carry himself bravely while on the scaffold.

THE EXECUTION.

Father Galliano arrived at the jail soon after 11 o'clock, and administered the sacrament to the prisoner. As the fire-bell struck 12 the prisoner was taken from his cell to the scaffold. He walked as far as the steps and showed no sign of weakness, and spoke a few words from the scaffold, and protested his innocence to the last. The priest offered a short prayer and administered the sacrament, after which the trap was sprung, precisely at 12:05. His neck was broken by the fall.

Southern California Makes a Grand Hit with Her Exhibit.

Her Luscious Products Given Away With Lavish Hands, But Enough Remain for Exhibits Elsewhere—Closing Scenes of the Encampment—Veterans Going Home.

By Telegraph to The Times.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—[Special.] The Southern California fruit exhibit has attracted wide and wonderful attention. Thousands have visited Armory Hall daily. Since the opening of the exhibits the hall has been packed. The praises of the people are unstinted, and interest in California is aroused by this exhibition. The questions asked about the country are legion.

The results that will follow from this exhibit cannot fail to be large and substantial. The effect of the show will reach far into the future. The immense hit by the press banquet of Wednesday night is remarked on all sides. As the exhibit nears its close the fruit is given away in sample packages to thousands of delighted visitors. Today several large Grand Army posts marched to the hall and were served in this way.

The balance of the exhibit is to be presented to the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroad, which will take charge of it, and also of the printed matter, and place the same in the Missouri State Fair next week, after which the fruit and wines will be put into the company's main offices in this city.

Altogether, the exhibit has been a great success and a good investment for the people of Southern California. H. G. O.

THE ENCAMPMENT.

Debate on Pensions—Rea Elected Commander-in-Chief.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] At the Encampment today a resolution was offered stating at length that in vetoing the Dependent Pension Bill the pledge made to soldiers when they flocked to the aid of the country at the time of her greatest peril was broken, and the President has thwarted the express will of a grateful people.

After the report of the committee had been made, Vandervoort opened the debate on the matter, claiming that the Grand Army should have the courage of its convictions and vote as they felt on the question.

Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, spoke in favor of the report, and said he had as much feeling upon the pension question as any other man, but he stood as a representative of a body of men greater than the President of the United States and more dignified in their utterances than the President had shown himself.

After some further debate, Vandervoort's amendment was overwhelmingly defeated and the report of the committee adopted by a vote of 318 to 178.

The committee presented majority and minority reports on the $8-a-month or Service Pension Bill. The majority report is against it, the minority in its favor.

A committee was appointed to get up a testimonial to present to Commander-in-Chief Fairchild.

It is very lengthy and substantially shows that the trouble was precipitated altogether by the whites. Colorow had no desire to fight and made use of his weapons in self-defense only.

The President Starts on His Tour of West and South—Bowing His Way Through Pennsylvania.

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] About fifty persons gathered in front of the White House this morning to witness President and Mrs. Cleveland's departure. The weather, which had been rainy and disagreeable for three days, cleared off beautifully. At 9:45 a carriage drove up to the north front and the President, Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Folsom and Lena, Mrs. Cleveland's maid, entered and were driven to the railroad station. The President wore the usual black suit, while Mrs. Cleveland was dressed in brown silk. A special train has been run back nearly to the entrance of the building, and looked handsome in new paint and glistening bronze. Through the plate glass windows could be seen baskets of jacqueminot roses and other cut flowers. From the waiting-rooms a curious crowd eyed the train and every member of the party as they arrived. Marshal Wilson was early at the depot. He was followed by Secretary Fairchild. Col. and Mrs. Lamont, with their two children, arrived next and went immediately to the train.

SHORT STOP AT BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 30.—The President's train reached Baltimore an hour and ten minutes after leaving Washington. The announcement that the party would arrive had attracted about a thousand persons, fully half of whom were ladies. As soon as the train stopped the President and Mrs. Cleveland were seen about the center of the car. He sat near a window, and to a request to go to the platform shook his head. At 11:15 the train pulled out. There was no demonstration by the people assembled at the station.

AT YORK, PA.

YORK (Pa.), Sept. 30.—The special train bearing President Cleveland and Mrs. Cleveland reached here at 11 o'clock. It passed very slowly through the city, but did not stop. President Cleveland stood upon the rear platform and bowed pleasantly to the assembled crowds. All along the line of the railroad in the city people were gathered, and at the depot an immense crowd had assembled. Frequent cheers greeted President and Mrs. Cleveland.

STILL BOWING.

HARRISBURG (Pa.), Sept. 30.—President Cleveland and party arrived shortly after 2 o'clock. Several thousand people thronged the depot and cheered as the train slowly made its way through the mass of humanity, which could not be driven back by the policemen. The President and Mrs. Cleveland stood on the rear platform and bowed to the people.

THE HANDSHAKING BEGUN.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 30.—The ride up the Susquehanna Valley and Juniata Valley was delightful. At all points the inhabitants were out in force, waving flags and handkerchiefs, and shouting and cheering. No feature of the entertaining panorama was lost or unenjoyed by the President and his wife. To every welcoming demonstration he made a courteous acknowledgment. At Altoona there was a roaring crowd, filling every inch of the immense platform and all the open region about. The President stepped down to the platform, and an attempt was made to pass the multitude before him to give an opportunity for handshaking, but despite the commands, threats, entreaties and even blows of those who tried to manage the affair, the people surged ahead from both sides and in front as well. Mrs. Cleveland created diversion and afforded a measure of relief by retreating to the parlor car and seating herself in front of one of the wide plate-glass windows. The flanks of the multitude caught sight of the picture and crowded around to look upon it. The President now stepped back upon the car platform as the allotted time was up, but even now they were unwilling to let him go. The last hand he shook was that of a man who climbed upon the roof of the car and hung head downward over the rear end. The whole exciting episode lasted only four or five minutes. There was not a sign of intentional rudeness throughout, but, notwithstanding the good nature and well-meant enthusiasm, an expression of hope is warranted that better arrangements will be made ahead. The President admitted, as he reëntered the car, that he had never had quite such an experience before. The only thing he regretted, however, was that such arrangements had not been made as would have given a greater number an opportunity to meet him.

A Lone Highwayman's Exploits.

GALVESTON, Sept. 30.—A Temple (Tex.) special says: Two of the most daring stage robberies ever perpetrated in Texas occurred last night in Rennels county. The stage bound from San Angelo to Ballinger was halted at 11 o'clock by a single highwayman, six miles from Ballinger. He stood the eight passengers in a row and went through their pockets, securing nearly two thousand dollars in money and considerable jewelry. When the stage going in the opposite direction came along shortly after he went through its passengers in the same manner.

Public Debt Reduction.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The estimated reduction in the public debt for September is $165,000,000.

Beats a California Fungus.

The following statement, which is going the rounds of the press, is declared to be a fact: An English gentleman had a cask of Malmsey sweet wine placed in an inner room in his wine cellar. He was absent from home for a long time, and on his return ordered his butler to open the wine for his guests. His astonishment may well be imagined when he was informed that the entrance to the room was closed by an enormous fungus growth. An entrance was forced by chipping the fungus with an ax. The cask was found empty, pressed against the ceiling, supported upon and surrounded by this vegetable matter, which almost entirely filled up the remaining space in the apartment.

THE YANKEE WINS.

The Volunteer Again Beats the Thistle,

And the America's Cup Will Not Cross the Ocean This Year.

The Thistle Fails to Get a Lead After the First Few Knots.

The Race Sailed in a Stiff Breeze—The Thistle's Captain Admits That His Boat Was Fairly Outsailed, but Grumbles About the Course.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] The day did not open propitiously for the yacht race. The same old storm that has been hanging about for two days was still lingering and the bank of fog, that showed yesterday, was still under the skies. When the boats got to Sandy Hook they found a lively breeze. It was precisely 10:30 a.m. that the preparatory signal was given. At 10:40 the gun to start was fired. At that moment the Thistle and Volunteer were southeast of the line, not 200 yards apart, each working gradually to the line. The Thistle was nearer and went away on her trip nearly four lengths ahead of the Volunteer. The yachts started as follows: Thistle, 10 hours, 40 minutes, 21 seconds; Volunteer 10 hours, 40 minutes, 50¾ seconds. They went over on the starboard tack, and the Volunteer at once began to outpoint and outfoot her opponent. The first tack, which was a long one, seven miles, decided virtually the race. The Volunteer beat to windward of the Thistle in a way that satisfied all spectators that knew anything about it that the AMERICAN BOAT WOULD WIN.

On each tack that followed the Volunteer continued to get to the windward and ahead as well. The Volunteer not only outpointed her rival, but outfooted her as well. Tack after tack showed up the same thing and showed that the sloop was beating the cutter. The wind at the start was blowing twenty miles an hour. It maintained that velocity all the way out, except during a period of perhaps twenty minutes.

The yachts rounded the outer mark as follows: Volunteer, 2hs. 26m. 40s. Thistle, 2hs. 41m. 0s.

THE RUN HOME.

The yachts set spinnakers coming home, and the question as to whether the broad cutter could go fast enough before the wind to make up the Yankee's gain in windward work was to be decided. The Volunteer had a lead of fully twelve and a half minutes when the Thistle rounded, and that was not diminished very much on the run, and the American sloop crossed the line a winner by 11 minutes 48¾ seconds.

THE TIME.

The following table gives the figures, including the six seconds allowance that the Volunteer had to give the Thistle on the forty-mile course:

	Volunteer.	Thistle.
Start	10:40:50¾	10:40:22
Finish	4:23:25¾	4:35:12
Actual time	5:42:56¾	5:54:51
Corrected time	5:42:56¾	5:54:45

A FAIR BEAT ADMITTED.

After the race, Mr. Bell admitted that the Volunter with her centerboard, had fairly beaten the Thistle in thrashing to windward. He insisted, however, that the courses laid out by the American's Cup Committee were unfair. He said that he fully expected to win the inside race and the triangular or third race, because he had no doubt the Thistle could easily beat the sloop in running and reaching. Mr. Bell added that the Thistle was for sale for $50,000, and that if a purse were offered for another race she would be entered.

TALK OF FOUL BOTTOM.

He had nothing to say about the foul condition of the bottom of the Thistle today, and the designer, G. L. Watson, and Capt. Barr, both admitted that the Thistle had been beaten in windward work, and that the centerboard had greatly helped to do it.

Mr. Bell, correspondent of the Glasgow Herald, says that a challenge for the cup will surely come next year.

MUST HAVE CENTERBOARDS.

GLASGOW, Sept. 30.—Scotchmen are greatly disappointed over today's race, but admit that the Thistle was fairly defeated. It is believed that if a race for the cup shall again be sailed in American waters, the Scotch yacht, to be successful, must have a centerboard.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

Bad Weather, but a Fine Race--Great Rejoicing.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] A great rain and fog this morning had the effect of almost entirely driving away the crowds from the excursion steamers that were to accompany the yachts Thistle and Volunteer on the second race of the series for the America's cup. The yachts were to go twenty miles straight out to sea and return. An Associated Press tug followed the races, and had on board a plentiful supply of carrier pigeons. Few boats were in sight.

At half past 9 o'clock it was raining heavily, and the wind was twenty miles an hour and stiffening rapidly. A dense fog shut off a view of the water.

THE RACE BEGUN.

The preparatory gun was fired at 10:32. The yachts then manœuvered for a start, The wind was fifteen miles east. The fog was lifting a trifle.

The yachts crossed the line about 10:48. A haze prevented close observation, but the Volunteer seemed to have a slight lead. They were going very close-hauled, with booms to port.

At 11:50 a.m. the yachts were out of sight. When last seen they were heading east by northeast and sailing very rapidly, with the gap widening a little in favor of the Yankee. The wind held sill east and blew steadily twenty to twenty-five miles an hour.

THE VOLUNTEER GAINING.

At 12:45 p. m., both were standing south and the Volunteer was ahead. The Volunteer, after the start, bore to windward in great style and through the drifting fog could be seen gaining on the Scotch cutter. Ten minutes after the start she was well to windward and pulling away from the Thistle. The wind was from east-north-east and blowing twenty-four miles an hour.

At 12:52 p. m., the yachts were about one mile south of the turning stake and the Volunteer led by over a mile. Shortly after she was two miles ahead.

IN A STIFF BREEZE.

SANDY HOOK, Sept. 30, 1:45 p.m.—The ocean is covered with white caps and blowing half a gale. Pilot-boats are scudding about under double reef, and the wind is now thirty miles and increasing. If it blows much heavier the racers will have to house their topmasts.

HIGHLANDS, Sept. 30.—At 2:30 the Volunteer is six miles from Scotland Lightship and three miles ahead of the Thistle.

SANDY HOOK, Sept. 30, 3 p.m.—The Thistle turned the stakeboat at 2:43, seventeen minutes after the Volunteer. The wind has fallen to twenty miles an hour.

SANDY HOOK, Sept. 30.—The Volunteer is four miles from the finishing line. The Thistle is two miles astern.

THE YANKEE WINS.

HIGHLANDS, Sept. 30.—The Volunteer crossed the line at 4:22. The official time of crossing the line was 4:24. The blowing of whistles and booming of guns continued for fully five minutes. The Thistle finished at 4:34.

The Tennessee Election.

NASHVILLE, Sept. 30.—Election returns indicate a majority against the prohibition amendment of about 15,000.

COHEN'S REPORT.

He Presents a Bill Against the Railway Commissioners.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] Auditor Mink, of the Union Pacific, before the Pacific Investigating Committee today submitted the various records, which had been called for. The commission called on Cohen, attorney for the Central Pacific, to produce the check-stubs drawn by Huntington from 1872 to 1880, and the letter and press books of the New York office for the same time. Cohen declined, saying that he did not propose to recommend any further expenditures to accommodate the commission, as that body had already run up nearly $10,000 for transportation, food, wine, etc. Cohen was told to present an itemized account.

C. P. Huntington was recalled and asked many questions regarding money matters, check-books, etc. No information was secured from him.

Then Mr. Cohen presented a bill of the Central Pacific against the Commission for $7785, which Gov. Pattison said would be paid when passed upon.

Adjourned subject to call of the chairman.

Southern Pacific's New Cut in Rates —The Wreck of the Brother Jonathan at Last Discovered, Etc.

By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—The new rate sheet for overland travel, to go into effect tomorrow, has been issued by the Southern Pacific Company. The sheet shows a general reduction of $1 or $2 for first-class limited tickets to points on direct routes beyond the Missouri River. Rates to St. Louis and Chicago are the same.

A "mixed class" has been introduced by which a passenger may travel second class to the Missouri River and first class east of the "Big Muddy." The third class rate to New York has been reduced from $62.50 to $62.25. A limited first class rate of $77 has been made to New York via the Southern Pacific New Orleans route, Chicago and Atlantic, Niagara Falls short line and Lake Erie and Western. This is the lowest rate made to the East. By mixed-class arrangement a passenger may go to New York via Buffalo for $66, and via El Paso and New Orleans for $62.

QUICKER TIME.

Southern Pacific's New Fast Line to the East.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] General Passenger Agent T. H. Goodman, of the Southern Pacific, today makes public the following important and interesting communication: The Queen and Cresent, or Cincinnati Southern line, will commence running a limited train on Sunday, October 2d, which will leave New Orleans at 5 p.m. and arrive in Cincinnati at 6 p.m. next day. There it will connect with the celebrated limited vestibule train of the Pennsylvania road, arriving in New York at 7 p.m. on the day following, making the through time from New Orleans to New York in fifty hours. The Atlantic express, of the Southern Pacific Company, leaving San Francisco at 9:30 a.m., will be made to connect at New Orleans with the above limited express. Thus, passengers leaving San Francisco at 9:30 a.m. on Monday, or Los Angeles on Tuesday morning, will arrive in New York the following Sunday evening, a total of 3879 miles in 150½ hours, or about six and a quarter days.

THE BROTHER JONATHAN.

A Wreck Found After a Search of Ten Years.

CRESCENT CITY, Sept. 30.—Last Monday morning after ten years' search, Capt. Gee discovered the wreck of the steamer Brother Jonathan, lost twenty-two years ago. The wreck lies two miles off the northwest seal rock, eighteen miles northwest from Crescent City. She struck on a rock not down on the charts.

The steamer, Brother Jonathan, was wrecked July 30, 1865, on her way from this city to Victoria with 109 passengers and a crew of fifty-four. James Nisbet, editor of the San Francisco Bulletin, and Brig.-Gen. Wright of the United States Army, were among the passengers lost. Only fifteen or sixteen of all those on board reached shore alive.

The Iconoclast at Work.

An Austrian paper, the La Lumiere Electrique, now tries to rob Franklin of the honor of his discovery, and says a monk of Seuptenberg, in Bohemia, named Bishop Diwisch, erected the first lightning-rod on the 15th of June, 1754. "The apparatus was composed of a pole surmounted by an iron rod supporting twelve curved-up branches, and terminating in as many metallic boxes, filled with iron ore, and closed by a boxwood cover, traversed by twenty-seven sharp iron points, which plunged at their base in the ore. All the system was united to the earth by a large chain. The enemies of Diwisch, jealous of his success at the court of Vienna, excited the peasants of the locality against him, and under the pretext that his lightning-rod was the cause of the great drought, they made him take down the rod which he had utilized for six years. What is most curious is the form of this first lightning-rod, which was of multiple points, like the one which M. Melseu afterward invented." Shakespeare and Franklin! Next?

She Got the Bear.

A shepherd boy having been killed by a bear in the mountains of Savoy recently, the villagers got up a hunt for the bear, but couldn't find him. While returning home they missed the boy's mother, who had insisted in joining in the search, armed with a gun. It was night, but the woods were scoured in every direction. When day dawned the woman was found lying in a secluded spot, her dress in rags, her arms crushed, and her face covered with blood. At her side was a huge bear, dead, its head smashed by a discharge from the gun which she had taken with her. She was taken home and it was thought might recover, although at last accounts she was unable to describe her struggle with the bear. She had continued the search after the others had given up.

NO EXPLANATION.

What a Professor Thought He Saw With Mme. Blavatsky.

[Kansas City Journal.]

Just a few evenings ago, at a small dinner party, Prof. Clarke, of the geodetic survey, who was once a student at Cornell, in the same class with Gov. Foraker, of Ohio, told me a strange experience he once had in New York with Mme. Blavatsky, the notorious Theosophist.

He wished to test her supposed supernatural powers and see for himself if she could do any of the wonderful things alleged, of which Julian Hawthorne is so fond of writing. He called and stated the object of his errand. The madame was seated in an arm-chair at one end of her room. She was gracious, polite, volatile and agreeable. There was a center-table in the room.

"Write a letter personally to yourself," she said, "about something known only to yourself, and seal it."

He did so.

"Drop it on the floor near the table."

This was done. She put her hand near the carpet, pointed with one finger, and the letter came to her. She took it up and made a motion as if she would open it.

"I beg your pardon," said the disturbed professor. "That is a personal and private letter."

"Oh, I will not open it," was the reply. "If you look upon the table you will find a copy of it."

She handed the sealed letter to Professor Clarke. He went to the table, and saw an exact copy of his letter in his own handwriting upon another sheet of paper.

"Seal that up," said Mme. Blavatsky, "and when you get home you will find ir under the table in your study."

"I put on my hat, thoroughly frightened," he said to me, "and got out of the house as soon as I could, and rushed home. I found the copy of my letter, just as she said I would."

"How do you explain it?" I asked.

"There is no explanation," was the reply.

An Independent Editor.

[Kansas City Star.]

The editor of the Kinsley Mercury is an independent man who knows what his rights are and dares maintain them. The last issue of the paper contains this item:

"We are indebted to the late printers in the Mercury office for this item, and as news is somewhat scarce just now we are under ever so many obligations.

About 9 o'clock this morning, in settling a slight misunderstanding as to who was entitled to run this office, the editor or the foreman, the foreman considering, possibly, that his rights were being infringed upon, walked out and took the entire force, including the devil, with him. For the benefit of all future employés we will say right here, that we own the Mercury office and we propose to run it to suit ourselves. We pay our printers spot cash every Saturday night for work in the shop, but not to run the office, regardless of whether it suits us or not. We will continue to pay good men good wages promptly, but we will not be dictated to by any man or set of men in our employ. In plain English, we propose to run this office to suit ourself, and ask no odds or ends of any one."

Sam Jones Defines a Dude.

Now, some of you young bucks may not like that, but if you don't like it you can lump it. Do you hear that? If you come up here looking decent, though I don't quite know how you can do that, and are duly penitent, I think I could take you by the hand, for I never bear malice, even against a dude. A dude! What is that? A little, dapper fellow, with hair parted in the middle, and a cane and tooth-pick shoes, and looks like he had been melted and poured into his breeches, he fits them so.

What is a dude or a dudine? Do you know? Did you ever see a little pimple on your face when you woke up in the morning, with a white top to it? That's a dude; just an indication of bad blood, that's all. Did you ever see a dudine? When you get up in the morning after you have squeezed that pimple, that's a dudine—something to squeeze! Something that men squeeze, and the tendency of this worldly life lies in that direction, and I tell you whenever there's bad blood in society it is going to show itself in that direction.

Signs That Never Fail.

[Buffalo Express.]

It will soon be time to take in the plants at night. The leaves on the pear tree will all turn yellow, and Charlie will come in as far as the front stoop, where, behind the strings of withering woodbine, he will keep our Lizzie from catching her death of cold with a section of his nice new fall overcoat and both arms. The boy who tends the soda fountain will be looking for another job, and he will have a chance to carry in the winter's coal before he goes down town to look. The young man in the dress goods at Smith & Adams's will no longer edify the rest of the boarders by calling for iced coffee. The kids in the streets will make bonfires of dead leaves, and Mr. Bricks, in the early morning, will take his chin from his knees, get out of bed, and pull down the window with a slam, while Mrs. Bricks snores on.

The Antipodean Girl.

[St. James Gazette.]

The Australian girl is tall and slender. She lacks somewhat in complexion, but generally she is pretty. The Victorian girl is decidedly good looking. The New Zealand girl has a far better complexion than the Australian girl, and is fresher and more healthy, perhaps, for the climate is milder. She resembles the English girl much more than does the Australian, and her development keeps pace with the former. But Tasmania is said to be the home of beauty, and it certainly seems to have more than its share of fair maidens. It is not at all uncommon for the Melbournian to run across to the little island for the purpose of enjoying a well-earned holiday and "picking up" a wife.

The Wide-Awake Widow.

Here is a picture of one lately become a widow: Her sighs are tenderly managed. Her far-away look at times would indicate that she is gazing across the swift and silent tide that flows ceaselessly along the dark, dim walls of the world to a gentleman whom she knew quite well, who is sitting lonesomely among the asphodels on the other bank, holding a bouquet of scented immortelles to a nose that does not smell. She is not gazing there, however. She has grown a little nearsighted on his account, or she would not tonight be smiling at the gentleman whom, if the sowing seed bears fruit, she will one day be reminding of those many virtues in his predecessor which she never discovered till she found them in the epitaph.

CATARRH!

THROAT DISEASES, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA,

CONSUMPTION,

Together with diseases of the

EYE, EAR AND HEART,

Successfully treated by

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M.D.,

M. C. P. S. O.,

No. 275 North Main Street.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

This has been demonstrated in thousands of cases treated by

DR. WILLIAMS,

With his new system of Medicated Inhalations combined with proper constitutional remedies for the liver, stomach, blood, etc.

Probably no system of practice ever adopted has been so universally successful as that introduced by Dr. Williams for the cure of Catarrh, Throat Diseases, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

CATARRH.

Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his astonishment at his remarkable tendency to contract a fresh cold; indeed, he declares that he is scarcely free from one cold before he takes another, and oet he is always exceedingly careful; it is also a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of Catarrh may seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but another class of symptoms soon appears, and he learns to his horror that instead of recovery from the disease, it is somewhat changed in its character and has extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, speaking or singing, hoarseness at times occurs, a sensation of dryness is felt in the throat, or it appears that some oreign subs tance, as, for instance, a hair, obtructed the throat; there becomes a sense of languor and fatigue, the breath lessens upon a little exertion, a short, hacking cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the throat, a feeling as though there was not room enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptoms occur after the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about to begin its dreadful work. Up to this time the progress of the disease may have been slow, and the patient may, in expressing his confident hope that it will "wear off," declare that he has had the catarrh for years, and has not seemed to become much worse, and trusts that he will "by-and-by" recover. But this delusion is the grand error which has peopled our cemeteries with consumptive forms, as all forms of catarrh end finally in consumption.

Inhalations are applicable in all diseases of the respiratory organs, but must be prepared for each individual case as they severally require.

By the employment of proper inhalation in the form of medicated vapor (not steam or spray) we are able to produce immediate and direct action upon the diseased surface in the pharnyx and nasal passages, for air will find its way into the most remote and intricate cavities, where it is utterly impossible to make fluid applications. By these means every can be cured.

Persons desiring treatment by this system of practice can use the remedies at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance to business whatever.

I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless unless both lungs are seriously involved. Even then the inhalations aid us in dissolving the mucus and in contracting and healing the cavities, which nothing else can do with the same success.

The very best references from those already cured.

This is the only resort within seventy miles of Los Angeles where first-class medicinal springs are found. It will, therefore, always be filled with health-seekers. The enterprising firm of Byram & Poindexter have secured 200 acres immediately adjoining the best side of this town of Santa Fe Springs, and will sell no town lots at all. They offer it only in blocks of from four to ten acres, at low acre prices, on easy terms. This gives buyers an opportunity to make handsome villa homes or small farms, just beside a railroad depot, handsome new hotel and other extensive improvements. Any purchaser of this property can double his money by subdividing into lots. Call on us for maps and further particulars. Byram & Poindexter, 27 West First street, Los Angeles.

I think he has a perfect method of treatment which will apply to all stammers, and recommend him as one of the ablest and most successful instructors I have ever met. SMITH JAMES, Pasadena.

IMPORTANT

—TO—

OWNERS AND BUYERS OF REAL-ESTATE!

THE OFFICIAL CALL LIST

—OF THE—

LOS ANGELES

Real-Estate and Stock Exchange

—IS ISSUED DAILY—

For Free Circulation.

The CALL LIST contains descriptions of improved and unimproved real-estate and securities listed by authority, and offered for sale to bidders willing to pay a fair market price. These properties are bought or sold only on commission by responsible real-estate brokers, bound by the rules and regulations of the Exchange to protect their customers against misrepresentation, fraudulent or defective titles, extortion in prices, and the thousand and one tricks of unscrupulous and irresponsible dealers.

The principal function of the Exchange is to establish and maintain real-estate values in the mutual interest of both buyer and seller. This can only be accomplished by actually closing transactions in open session of the Exchange and making a public record of the bids, of the prices asked by holders, and of the sales, by which means stability is given to the real-estate market, and the fullest protection is extended to all parties concerned.

Those who have property for sale, listed on the Exchange, are guaranteed the full market value of their real-estate, of which they have no assurance without the facilities which a well-regulated Exchange always affords to investors.

Intending buyers are secured against extortion, by the daily publication of the Real-Estate Exchange quotations on all classes of property, without which information they are frequently induced to pay far more than the actual market value of the property purchased.

The rules and regulations and blank forms of the Los Angeles Real-Estate and Stock Exchange have been copyrighted, and all persons infringing such copyrights will be proceeded against according to law.

The lobby of the Board Room, at No. 15½ South Spring street, next to the Nadeau House, is free to the public. Two sessions of the Exchange are held daily, at 10:30 o'clock a.m. and 3 o'clock p.m.

The Official Call List is distributed free by the Exchange messengers, or can be had free on application to the Secretary, at the office of the Exchange, No. 15½ South Spring street, or to any member of the Exchange, to whom all intending investors or home-seekers are respectfully referred for full, accurate and reliable information as to values, terms and conditions of sale and all other details relating to the properties duly listed on the Exchange.

FACTS ABOUT FULLERTON.

Fullerton is a town site on the San Diego division of the Santa Fe Railroad, twenty-three miles southwest of Los Angeles and three miles north of Anaheim. It is a regular station on that railway and all trains will stop there.

ADVANTAGES.

Fullerton has the most productive country tributary to it of any new town site laid out in Southern California; the country around is noted for its fertile soil and the great abundance of water. The water is derived from the Anaheim ditch, which, as is well known, is the most copious supply in Southern California. Oranges grow to the greatest perfection. The famous Gilman ranch adjoins the townsite of Fullerton. The Gilman place is the "show" walnut grove in the State, visitors being taken there from all parts of the country and shown it as a sample of what can be done in the way of having a perfect walnut grove. Oranges and limes from this section are noted throughout the State as being the finest produced anywhere, and commanding the top market price.

Land in the vicinity of Fullerton is still at a very reasonable figure, as the country is comparatively little known, being at present out of the way of the general lines of travel. With the advent of the Santa Fe Railroad, which is expected within ninety days, property will advance very materially, as it will then first be introduced to many seeking productive land at lower prices than that asked for in and about Pasadena.

OSTRICHES.

The original and largest ostrich farm is only one mile from the town, and is a great source of interest to tourists. One hundred ostriches may be counted.

COMMONWEALTH AVENUE

runs through the center of the town, one hundred feet wide and ten miles long. This will be one of the finest avenues in the Southern country. Lined with umbrageous shade-trees, and the soil is naturally adopted to road-making, packing as hard as asphalt, and never dusty or muddy.

ASPHALTUM.

Immense deposits of oil and asphaltum occur in the neighborhood.

PRICES OF LAND.

Ordinary land without water can be purchased for from $75 to $300 per acre; best land with water at $350 to $700 per acre, and there is but little doubt that all this land will sell readily at $1000 per acre within six months from date.

IMPROVEMENTS IN THE TOWN OF FULLERTON.

A $25,000 hotel is now in course of erection and will be finished within ninety days; two other $10,000 brick buildings are now contracted for and will be finished within the same time. A bank with $100,000 capital is incorporated, and will put up a $15,000 pressed-brick building immediately. Quite a number of houses are now in course of construction and many lots have been sold conditionally upon brick buildings being erected thereon immediately.

A cement sidewalk six feet wide is now being laid upon all the principal streets; water piped in heavy iron pipes and under good pressure through the streets.

PRICES OF LOTS.

Lots range in price from $150 to $700; all streets are graded and there is not an undesirable lot in the entire townsite, as the ground is perfectly level, with a slight fall from the foothills.

SOIL.

The soil is a fine sandy loam which neither gets muddy nor dusty.

CLIMATE.

Fullerton being but eight miles from the ocean, gets the sea breeze much sooner than towns on the other side of the foothill, thus producing a lower temperature in summer, and at the same time the proximity to the ocean causes a more equal and warmer temperature in winter.

Fullerton has the best soil, the best water, the best climate, the largest and most productive territory tributary to it, the best railroad facilities, and there is more cash being expended in it on permanent improvements than on any new town in Southern California.

NELLIE AND FLORENCE.

CONSTABLE SMITH CAPTURES NELLIE.

Two Naughty Girls Who Have Made Up Their Minds to Be Bad—One of Them Goes to Jail and the Other to Mrs. Watson.

Yesterday afternoon Officer Alford, assisted by Deputy Constable Roberts, went to Mother Brown's house and arrested one of the inmates named Florence Wilson, who was at the time on the eve of leaving town. All her trunks, three large Saratogas were packed, and these the officers caused to be taken to the police station where they now are.

The complaint was sworn out by a man calling himself George Hoyt, who says that he was robbed by Florence Wilson of a gold watch and chain and sundry other articles. It appears however, that Hoyt has been on a mild "tear" for the past few days, and wound it up by a visit to several houses of ill-fame, among others that of Mother Brown's. When he left there he discovered that he had lost his watch and chain, and at once came to the conclusion that he had been robbed. Acting on this theory he gave information to the police and Officer Alford was put on the case with instructions to get the watch and thief, both if possible.

Acting on information received, Alford visited the house in which Florence Wilson has been living for some time past, and there found that the woman was about to leave the house and possibly the city. Putting her under arrest at once, Alford stated his reason for his action, when the woman told him that she had the watch, but did not know to whom it belonged, she having found it in her room which during the night had been visited by several different men, either of whom might have left it there, and offered to return it. She was then taken to the station with her trunks and other articles, where she was booked on a charge of grand larceny, but furnishing bail was allowed to go at large until her case comes up in the city justice's court. From the fact that in addition to her bail, all her goods were kept in the custody of the police, it is thought that the one charge now preferred against her is not all for which she was arrested, but that other complaints will be made at the proper time.

NELLIE SLAWSON.

The 16-Year-Old Girl Is Brought Home by Fred Smith.

Yesterday morning Deputy Constable Fred Smith returned from the Devil's Cañon in company with the little 16-year-old girl, Nellie Slawson, who, it will be remembered, left the city with the man Oliver, who deserted his wife and family, leaving them in a destitute condition. Oliver and the girl ran away once previous to the present time, but, being captured, returned to his family, promising not to offend in that manner again, so his wife forgave him and continued to live with him. It was something like two weeks afterward that they again ran away in company, and this time went far enough away to lead them to imagine the officers would never be able to find them. Nellie Slawson has been handed over to Mrs. Watson, who will put her in the Home for Girls, and endeavor to reform her.

Sheet Metal Workers.

The following circular has been issued to the members of the Sheet Metal Workers' Union by Secretary E. B. Lindesmith:

"You are hereby notified of the new scale of wages recommended and adopted by the Journeymen Sheet Metal Workers' Union, to take effect on and after October 10, 1887, to wit: Tinners and cornice-makers shall be advanced from $3.50 to $4 per day; pipe-makers shall be advanced as follows: Straight seamers, from $3 to $3.50 per day; round seamers, to $4; standard, and for round seaming on all grades of iron over No. 16, the price shall not be less than $4.50 per day. It is a fact that sheet metal workers are working for less wages than most other classes of mechanics in Southern California, notably: Carpenters are receiving $4; plumbers, $4.50; plasterers, $6, and masons, $6 per day, etc. Therefore, in view of these facts, we feel justified in asking that the standard wages of sheet metal workers be advanced as per above scale of wages."

There is at present a large amount of work on hand in the various workshops of the city, and as the union is a very strong one there is but little doubt that their demand for higher wages will be acceded to by the bosses. The union is one of the best managed in Southern California, and although not as strong as some others, consisting of but 250 members, still it is well established and solid in every respect.

New Suits.

Among the new cases filed in the County Clerk's office yesterday were the following:

Thomas Richardson, who some time since made a contract for the purchase of what is known as the Carpenter ranch, sues A. A. Curtice, W. C. McBradley and J. F. Bidwell for the sum of $1000 and interest from May 13, 1887, that being the date of the contract and the making of the first payment of $1000 as agreed upon. Richardson now states that the land is not as it was represented to be by the defendant. He therefore asks that a judgment be given for the return, with accrued interest, of his payment of the amount stated.

The Kerckhoff-Cuzner Lumber Company sues A. Bila to recover the sum of $533 and interest, the amount of a promissory note given the plaintiffs by the defendant for value received.

There was also one divorce case, in which the husband sues for a decree of divorce on account of the desertion of him by his wife.

Wall Street Zanja.

Yesterday morning workmen commenced piping the zanja on Wall street, where, in the past three months, so many children have fallen in while at play. The zanja all along this street is raised about two feet above the surface of the street, but it seems that in spite of this fact the children have been in the habit of clambering on its sides and attempting to walk along the narrow edge of the boxing. It has also on several occasions been the cause of accidents to teams, as the track of the Pico-street electric railway runs right along under its banks, out of sight of the teams coming from the west, and often they have been stalled there at the crossings, causing a very annoying delay of the cars, which have to wait until the teams and the loads they haul are removed from the track. The piping is of the usual pattern, and with the present force of men on the work should be completed in a few days.

Switzer's Troubles.

Leonard Sweitzer, one of the State's witnesses in the Murphy-Rulo case, was yesterday brought into Judge Cheney's court to explain his non-appearance at the trial of the case. Sweitzer was under a $500 bond to appear at the time the trial was going on, but having a grudge against the authorities for being "pulled" too often, did not show up. He was again placed under a $500 bond, in default of which he was sent to jail.

The Los Angeles Panorama Company was incorporated yesterday. The directors are Walter S. Maxwell, L. N. Breed, Robert Turner, D. Freeman, A. Brunson, Francis A. Eastman, Henry Bartling, Lyman Bridges and J. Downey Harvey. The capital stock is $100,000, all subscribed.

FAMOUS SONG-WRITER.

ONE WHO GAVE INSPIRATION TO OUR SOLDIERS.

Henry C. Work, Author of "Marching Through Georgia" and Other Noted War Songs—A Creator of Genuine American Music.

[Correspondence New York World.]

In the August Century Mr. Brander Matthews gave us a most interesting article on the "Songs of the War." Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's "Battle-Hymn of the Republic" is reproduced in autograph, as is also the intense cry of Southern bitterness, "My Maryland." To this song, the words of which were written by a Baltimore man and set to the music of "Lauriger Horatius," there is given some four pages, which prominence may doubtless be accounted for by the literary interest Mr. Matthews feels in the author and the group of mutual friends about whom he writes so charmingly. While the writers of the two songs, opposed in sentiment, but having a common literary excellence, are thus "starred," there is only a small space devoted to the author of "Marching Through Georgia," and this in spite of the fact that the writer acknowledges it as one of the two or three songs which he thinks will live, counting it, with another, as "the chief musical legacy of the war."

It is, however, doubtless a fact that while the literati of the country failed to write a war song which moved the masses a Connecticut boy of unpretentious family, of ordinary education, and by trade a printer, became, through his inherent genius, the most inspiring and permanently popular song-writer of the period just previous to, during, and following the war. He not only composed the words which were in the mouths of every one, from the society belle down to the gamin on the street, but added to his talent for forceful verse the rarely associated gift of musical composition, sending forth his songs complete with words and music thoroughly harmonious because bearing the closest brain relationship.

Henry C. Work was born in Middletown, Ct., and when a boy was apprenticed to a printer. When his parents removed to Hartford he gained a release from his indenture there and came to this city to be near them. He was a fine-looking, athletic fellow—his pictures showing a clear-eyed, intelligent face, and the wealth of hirsute adornment which characterized the style of ante-bellum days. He finished the learning of his trade with Elihu Geer, and when through his work used to amuse himself in writing songs, which he carried about in his pocket, read to patient though unappreciative friends, and sat down to the piano and adapted to sweet melodies His first successful pieces were written for Christy's Minstrels, and many of the striking choral effects which moved their audiences to applause were first heard in the brain of the printer lad and drummed out on the little piano in the parlor of the old house on Chestnut street.

Among them was the well-known "Father, Come Home;" and who has not sat breathless, listening to the rare combination of pathos and harmony with which the changing cadences of human voices plead, "Hear the sweet voice of the child," and felt how much more persuasive and fetching than any other temperance sermon was this song, which would echo in the brain and persistently recur to the mind when one had passed on in the business of life? Mr. Work once said in chatting about his songs that this one seemed to have a singularly potent influence over men addicted to drink, and he had received hundreds of letters thanking him for giving it voice. With one from an unknown woman, which expressed deep gratitude for the conversion of her husband from his bad habits, was inclosed another from a friend, which conveyed the utmost confidence in his persuasive powers, and confided to him the humiliating fear that her spouse was likely to be overcome by the attractions of another woman. She begged Mr. Work to write a song which should touch his heart and induce him to return to his marital allegiance. But the muse could not be put in harness, and he was obliged to let the appeal go unanswered. Among the ballads which still hold an intrinsic value, which are only derogated from by the change in public taste and the strain after foreign clasics which results in leaving the substratum of tune-lovers practically musicless, are "Come Back to the Farm," "Grandfather's Clock," "Touch the Sleeping Strings Again." "The Ship That Never Returned," and many others familiar to all, but likely to be recognized with surprise in their relation to our Hartford song-writer. In all these there is that inherent quality of sympathy with human nature which invariably wins, and an instinctive knowledge and power of expression in music which are calculated to strike the public ear and compel the admiration of even the soulless critics, who too often place conventional form above the natural grace which is true art.

Then came the war, and Work sent forth, closely following one after another, "Kingdom Coming," Uncle Joe's Hail Columbia," Babylon is Fallen," and "Wake Nicodemus," which brought with them the very atmosphere of awakening plantation life and echoed the cotton-picker's musing hum and the roustabout's refrain.

There was the Hibernian mother's wail in "Grafted Into the Army," and the Tentonic chuckle in "Corporal Schnapps," which make them veritable genre pictures, while the tide of patriotic feeling rolled stronger and higher in "God Save the Nation" and "We'll Go Down Ourselves," reaching the full in the best known and loudly-applauded "Marching Through Georgia." Coming of historical necessity at the end of the war, has it not been seized upon by the veterans as the only song which in suggestive verse and swinging metre may adequately express their triumphant enthusiasm, until every city and hamlet which can boast a single man sent with the Union army has resounded again and still many times with the "Hurrah! Hurrah!" in which the people spontaneously join?

Every army reunion and commemorative camp-fire, every military demonstration and memorial parade, takes on new enthusiasm, and, as a living body, starts in to "mark time" with the first inspiring notes of the initial phrase which made the whole an assured success. There is very little Meyerbeer about this music. It is very American, very New England, very expressive of Yankee triumph!

And so the veterans have adopted it for their own, and roar and yell it throughout the land until Sherman is said to be afraid to show his head on public occasions, so inevitably is he greeted with the familiar chorus.

From this back to the heart-breaking sweetness of "Brave Boys Are They," there is a gulf of deep feeling, but not too wide to be crossed, and it has its own lovely place in softening the rancor of civil war. How beautifully was it taken up and sung by Mr. Cable, the first and best of the representatives of the people who are regenerate through the baptism by fire!

Henry C. Work did not go to the war, being bound by the ties of filial duty to remain at home; but who shall say that he performed not most valiant deeds of arms in writing the songs which fostered patriotism in a nation? He knew that in making the war-songs of the people he did grander, more productive work than those who originated and enforced its martial laws.

He was of the people, in sympathy with them, and thought not of the small fame which comes from the critical sanction of a few self-instituted judges of literary and musical form. With the great English singer he would have said: "Give me the ears of the shilling public and I care not for the praise of the dilettanti."

And the people have returned in kind his spontaneous sympathy and overflowing enthusiasm by welcoming and cheerishing his songs, paying to them the sincerest tribute of praise, adoption, and faithful admiration, while yet their author is to most of his singers unknown.

Henry C. Work was a good son, an affectionate brother, and a faithful husband and father, although the last years of his life were clouded by the illness of his wife, who was a nervous invalid. He had four children, one of whom, a daughter, now lives in Brooklyn. He died three years ago at the age of 51 while on a visit to Hartford. Exceptionally temperate in his habits, unselfish and devoted to his friends, his memory will remain green in the hearts of his early associates. His aged mother, who lives at the old home on Chestnut street, in this city, loves nothing so well as talking of her son, of whom she repeats: "There never was, never could be, a better." She shows with some deprecation a bit of manuscript upon which some lines of her own, a sweeping song made at the challenge of her own son in the merry days when he used to sit under the trees with paper and pencil, jotting down random thoughts, which he to set a tuneful measure. The annotation is as clear and easily read as the best music printing, and the bit of paper stands an evidence of his pleasant comradeship with his aged mother. She says that while he often composed with great facility, writing with nervous speed and dashing off a ballad, which seemed to fit itself to musical rhythm, there were occasions when he became troubled to work out an idea, and passed weeks of anxiety and sleeplessness over a new production.

His works brought him a comfortable income during his life, and he left a small competence to his daughter, the only surviving member of his family. "But," said the old lady, with an indulgent smile, "Henry lost a great deal by the failure of Root & Cady, and, you know, less friendly publishers sometimes forget to account for all their sales, and people who bring out the works of a dead man are not scrupulous to pay his heirs the royalty."

The Fijians.

[Gospel in all Lands.]

The story of Fiji is most wonderful. Here was a little archipelago of over 200 islands, the people were not only idolaters, but cannibals; they built houses for their chiefs, surrounding the piles on which they rested with the bodies of living men, buried alive. They launched canoes by making rollers of living human bodies; they killed infants and strangled widows. Human language has no terms to express the debasement of this people, or the atrocities of their customs. They are now a Christian people. In 1842 the island of Ono had not one heathen left on it, and it became the center of gospel light, until the whole group felt its power; so that today there are a thousand churches of Christ on those islands. Every village has its church building and school, and has all the signs of Christian life and a gospel civilization.

Perish the Thought.

[N. Y. Herald.]

President Wright, of the Chicago Board of Trade, with a drop of the Wild West on his tongue, characterized the New York Exchange as a "bucket shop." "Chops and tomato-sauce!" Are native born New Yorkers to be made the target for such criticisms and from such a source? Perish the thought! The dignity of our city demands a gory vindication of our honor.

The members of the Produce Exchange were quite right to roll their eyes in fine frenzy and hire a set of phrases specially suited to the occasion.

Chicago denouncing New York! Well, well; malice, envy and conceit can go no further.

A Black Eye.

A BURGLAR'S RUSE:

HE ELUDES THE POLICE BY SLEEPING IN A TRUNK.

And Walks Quietly Out in the Morning—He Lies Perdue All Night—A Cool and Slippery Robber—A Remarkable Episode.

[Columbus Dispatch.]

A large and excited crowd gathered about the store-room of Maris & Co., No. 28 North High street, Columbus, about 10:30 o'clock at night. The people had assembled to witness a search for a burglar who had made an entrance into the store. Some of the employés of Bowe & Beggs had heard a glass break, and immediately reported the same to Officer Feist, who happened to be in front of the building. Feist and Private Watchman George Eigensee commenced an investigation of the matter, and finally plainly saw the burglar in the rear of the store-room from the outside. As soon as he was seen, the fellow turned and walked leisurely to the front of the store. Eigensee ran around to the front and blew his whistle, calling to their assistance Officers Barry, Butterwick, Wittman and others, while Feist watched the rear.

Louis L. Maris, one of the firm, opened the door and a thorough search of the place was made, but, strange to say, no burglar could be found. At that time no goods were missed from the stock, nor could any place be found where the entrance had been effected. The officers even procured lanterns and scoured the roof of every building between Lynn Alley and Gay street, but no trace of the burglar could they find, and the search was finally given up in disgust.

This morning, however, developed quite a different state of affairs. On the third floor a large pane of glass was broken out, but across the center was nailed a strong strip of wood. It was apparent that the burglar had in some inexplicable way made his entrance here, as foot marks were plainly discernible where the dust had accumulated on the goods. It was also discovered that four revolvers were missing from the show case, but these were afterwards found secreted on the roof of the building. They are valued at $25. It appears that the burglar, finding that he was pursued, made his exit where he had entered before the police could get upon the roof. He walked on the roofs to the third story window of J. R. Hughes & Co.'s trunk store, which, fortunately for him, was not fastened, and made an entrance. Once inside he followed the example of Genevieve of old and secreted himself in one of the big "Saratoga" trunks in the store, where he remained all night, fearing to come out of his hiding place until certain that he would not be detected.

Between 5 and 6 o'clock in the morning, about the time the night police are changed and the day force go on duty, he walked down stairs, opened the rear door, and recovering his light overcoat, which had been left on a barrel in the alley, made good his escape.

THAT CIRCULAR.

How the Anarchists of Columbus Eat Fire.

[Ohio State Journal.]

An outrageous circular was distributed over this city Monday to get up an indignation meeting against the hanging of the Anarchists at Chicago. All members of labor organizations in this city denounce it, and of course none of them had anything to do with it. It is issued by a New York organization, both in English and German, and widely circulated. A few extracts are herewith given:

"Our comrades, Spies, Parsons, M. Schwab, Fielden, Lingg, Fischer and Engel, are to expire on the gallows, while Neebe must be doomed to death in a dungeon."

"The beasts of capital want blood! Their hirelings have shown themselves ready to seize the best and noblest from the ranks of the people and render them up to their senseless rage!"

"Workingmen! will you remain quiet while the strivings of your people, identical with the holiest yearnings of mankind, are sacrificed and trampled under foot in the persons of your comrades?"

"You know what is your duty. These condemned men are suffering because they loved mankind better than themselves; because they wrote and preached to you, and for you, the Gospel of the future."

"Now, you must demonstrate your solidarity—the strength of your organization.

"If you wish to do so you prevent the consummation on November 11 of this horrible deed, to which the deeds of cannibals are as nothing. We demand that every man does his duty, and that you say to this rabble of thieves and murderers which rules you, 'Thus far and no farther.'"

"Long live the solidarity!
Down with barbarism."

Smuggling Bogus Opals.

[Cor. Houston Jeweler's Weekly.]

Among the little souvenirs which visitors from abroad like to secure in a visit to Paso del Norte, none are more popular then opals. In the first place, the stone at its best is extremely handsome, and, in the second place, there is no difficulty dropping a few of them in one's vest pocket, and smuggling them across the frontier into the United States. Thus the visitor has not only the pleasure of securing a gem at a low figure, but has also the gratifying consciousness that he has done something smart.

It is said that this has been going on for some time, and has incited a number of sharp Mexicans to the manufacture of imitation opals, which they have sold in large quantities. A railroad man engaged on the Southern Pacific admitted to your correspondent a few days ago that he had been "taken in" by one of the wily venders of glass "gems." His headquarters are at New Orleans, and in the discharge of his duties he makes frequent visits to El Paso. On one of these occasions he was induced to purchase four of the so-called opals, for which he paid what would have been about one-third of their value had they been genuine. He said:

"I took them down to New Orleans to be set in scarf pins, and when the jeweler saw them he looked curious, stuck a magnifier in his eye and told me the things were glass. They were very fine imitations, and worth about $1.25 a gross. I want to meet the Mexican that sold 'em to me just once before I die."

It is said that the trade in these bogus stones in the little Mexican town has been extensive, and the gentleman referred to states that many Americans have been swindled. The scheme is ingenious for the purchaser, knowing that he is breaking the law in smuggling them over, is sure to keep the supposititious gems securely hidden until he gets well away from El Paso. The usual mode of operations is as follows: A dilapidated Mexican approaches the tourist and inquires in broken English whether he wants to buy any opals, adding that he has some he mined himself. A box of stones of different sizes is produced, and the prices are about a third less than those of the stores. The vender is always ready to add a picturesque effect to the swindle by narrating his adventures in getting the stones, and the meeting generally terminates in a purchase. Of course all his wares are counterfeit.

The opal is the aristocrat of gems, and as far as an expert is concerned it is impossible to make an imitation that will deceive. But most people are familiar with the general appearance only, and that is pretty well simulated by the Mexican makers.

VALUABLE BOOK!

OUR FAMILY PHYSICIAN

GIVEN AWAY!!

To all Subscribers of the

WEEKLY MIRROR!

The price of the WEEKLY MIRROR is $2.00 a year. This book sells for $3.00 in the market. We will furnish both for $2.00. If the book is to be sent out of this office, 20 cents must accompany order to pay postage.

THE BEST PREMIUM OFFERED

By any Paper in the United States.

Please read these indorsements of distinguished physicians which were sent to the publishers of this grand work:

Having examined the advance sheets of the work entitled "Our Family Physician," I can say that I find it accurate in its descriptions of diseases and reliable in its therapeutical department.
N. F. COOKE, M.D.,
Professor of theory and practice, Hahnemann Medical College.

I hereby certify that I have examined a work entitled "Our Family Physician," and find it to be correct in its diagnosis, and, in my opinion, worthy of the confidence of the public.
H. S. HANN, M.D.

I have examined the advance sheets of "Our Family Physician." It gives me pleasure to recommend the work as correct in its mode of treatment of diseases, and it deserves wide circulation.
J. F. COOKE, M.D.,
Professor in Burnett's Medical College, Chicago.

After examining the publication "Our Family Physician," I can fully indorse the opinions expressed of its merits by the above gentlemen.
R. A. GUNN, M.D.,
Professor of the Burnett Medical College.

The book contains a valuable chapter of symptoms, which will aid wonderfully in diagnosing diseases, and the proper remedies are given for Allopathic, Homeopathic, Eclectic, Hydropathic and Herbal.

THE MOST PRACTICAL! THE MOST RELIABLE

Everybody should have a copy of our
"FAMILY PHYSICIAN."

This book contains 544 pages; is eight and one-half inches long, six inches wide and two inches thick. It is printed on extra heavy paper and is handsomely bound, with embossed cover and gilt-lettered back.

IT IS DIFFERENT FROM ALL OTHER WORKS OF THE KIND EVER PUBLISHED.

FIRST—It teaches those who have it how to tell what the matter is when some one gets sick. All similar books tell what to do—if you know what the disease is. THIS BOOK TELLS YOU HOW TO RECOGNIZE THE DISEASE, and then what to do for it. No other book published does this.

SECOND—When a person is really attacked by a dangerous disease, it enables you to know the fact, and in such cases its advice is, "Send for a competent physician at once." In all ordinary cases, such as can be cured without a doctor (and most of the ailments in a family are of this kind, if only you could recognize them), it gives full directions for treatment. The point is, that it teaches you the difference between a dangerous and a trifling disease and tells you when it is necessary and when it is not necessary to call a physician. No other book published does this.

THIRD—It gives separately, and for each disease, the methods used by each of the different "schools of medicine," and in all cases the prescriptions are made by the most eminent men in their respective mode of practice. This makes the work specially suited to the needs of every family, no matter what school of medicine they prefer—the Allopathic, Homeopathic, Hydropathic, Eclectic or Herbal. NO OTHER BOOK PUBLISHED DOES THIS.

WE WILL SHOW YOU HOW IT DOES THIS

If you will call and see us.

Every family should have a guide to health to assist the family doctor, not intended to take the place of the doctor in every instance, but to help you do everything possible in his absence.

—:TO OUR OLD SUBSCRIBERS:—

It is customary with newspapers to give premiums to new subscribers only; but the publishers of the MIRROR mean to reverse this old rule; they intend to do as well, at least, by their old subscribers—those who have stood by the paper in years past, and paid their money for it "right straight along." We propose to show our appreciation of these friends in a substantial manner; and as the premium to be offered is expensive, and as our express object in offering it is to increase our list of subscribers, we will require every old subscriber who may renew his subscription, in order to receive the valuable premium, to bring in AT LEAST ONE NEW SUBSCRIBER, to whom the premium will be given, as well as to the old subscriber.

THE TIMES-MIRROR CO.,

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

Paso Robles.

THE FLOURISHING HEAD CENTER OF SAN LUIS OBISPO COUNTY.

PASO ROBLES, Sept. 27.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] My letter in THE TIMES of August 10th called forth numerous inquiries. I only wish Los Angeles was close enough to us so that we could talk to your people every day.

The reader of my other letter will see that this north part of San Luis Obispo county is striped with streams. The San Juan, the Estrella, the Cholame, the Huer Huero, all irrigate an extensive county. The Salinas River serves the purpose of a drainage for all those streams. And there are the San Marcus, Las Tablos and Nacimiento streams flowing from the west into the Salinas. Bordering these last named streams there are many valleys and mountain table lands affording room for many hundreds of settlers.

The Government land is all gone—anyhow, such as most men would have, has been taken. The land recently reverted to the Government from the Southern Pacific Railroad grant is largely in Monterey county, lying north of township 22. It has about all been settled on by parties who contracted with the railroad company for it for several town sites. And the San Juan Valley is long, rich and uninhabited. A stream bordered with as fine land as grows in California, and, with abundance of water, and not a soul save an occasional cattle ranch, is a literal fact in existence. There are over 200,000 acres of land in one body over there uninhabited; room for a large farming community and several towns and one or two railroads. Your irrigationists might dream of water impossibilities there, but irrigation would be not necessary.

Already Paso Robles is showing industrious growth. A two-story brick block, 100x80, is just completed. A bank will open October 15th with J. H. Blackburn as owner. The Blackburn Bros. & James built a bridge across the Salinas River here, and the West Coast Land Company built one at Templeton, six miles south of us. Every mercantile industry is represented here, and trade is rapidly centering at Paso Robles from long distances.

The town site is very pretty. The ground is nearly level at the foot of pretty high hills that might be called mountains. The flat extends in width about a quarter of a mile to the Salinas River. Large overspreading live-oaks and some white oaks make a park of native growth for two miles along the river, and over the town site ground. From the north coming in on the cars a traveler suddenly rushes into a dense growth of timber, and is thus agreeably relieved after an all day's ride over the Salinas Valley from San José. He here finds the first relief from looking out of the cars into an almost blank waste since leaving San Francisco. This is a pleasant place for tourists, as well as rheumatics. One can find a shady, cool and elevated building spot in almost any distance from the business center. A plaza 600 feet square will be fenced and ornamented this winter, and it will be in front of the big hotel.

S. D. STREET.

Pomona.

STREET RAILROAD—PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS—NEW CHURCH—REAL-ESTATE EXCHANGE—WINERY.

POMONA, Sept. 29.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] Rapid work has been done toward the building of the Second-street Railroad, the pioneer road of Pomona. A uniform grade has been established, and ties and rails laid along the line of the track from Garey avenue to Town avenue, a distance of half a mile. To-morrow the first spike will be driven, with appropriate speeches and music. The line when completed will be one mile long, and will run through one of the most beautiful sections of Pomona.

The new bank buildings will both be started soon, and will be very fine and of superior architecture. The plans have been made, and are now being submitted to contractors.

The Hotel Palomares has reached the third story, and work on it is being pushed rapidly. About fifty carpenters have been imported from San Francisco to do the work.

The three new lodging-houses are growing rapidly, and will soon be open to roomers.

It is estimated that forty-five buildings, costing nearly $500,000, are now in course of erection in Pomona.

The sum of $3600 has been subscribed by the Congregationalists to build a new church. It will be placed on the corner of Third and Thomas streets, and will be a very fine structure.

A movement has been on foot for the past week to establish a real-estate exchange in Pomona, and a large and enthusiastic meeting of real-estate men was held in McComas Hall Thursday evening. It was decided to leave the matter in the hands of a committee, who are to obtain the general sentiment of all real-estate agents in the town on the matter, and report at a meeting to be held Monday.

The winery is doing a big business, and seventy-five tons of grapes are crushed daily. The erection of the new building has greatly increased the capacity of the winery. W. H. M.

It Was Tact.

Jack Blunt once loved a maid whose hair
With terra cotta might compare.
"My heart beats but for you," he said,
"No matter if your hair is red;
With me the color has no heft"—
And he got left.

George Smoothly later came to woo.
Said he, with passion, tender, true:
"I love you, and all that is you;
Those locks of dainty, golden hair,
The sunlight kissed and lingered there—
I'd give my all for one wee curl."
He got the girl.

What It Costs to Make a Good Indian.

[Western Recorder.]

It would be wisdom in our Government to encourage and protect missionaries and school teachers among the Indians as the cheapest way of managing them. It is stated that our modern campaigns against the Indians cost us $5,000,000. After counting the slain it is found that it takes $5000 to kill an Indian, when $500 is all it costs to convert and civilize one.

RIFF-RAFF OF RELICS.

BRIC-A-BRAC MANUFACTURE TO SUIT COLLECTORS' DEMANDS.

The Ease With Which Buyers are Deceived by Appearances—Practical People Who Are Not Good Subjects for the Dealer—Old Clocks.

[New York Tribune.]

Two young women stood in front of what appeared to be an elegant bronze statue in a bric-a-brac store in Broadway. The statue represented a horse crouching ready to spring and a half nude rider clinging to his back. The admiration of the young women was boundless, and they exhausted all the superlatives in giving expression to it. One of them could not help patting the horse's side, although the sign of "Hands off" was hanging from his back. She wanted to touch something that had come from the workshop of one of the old masters. Had she carefully examined the horse's hind hoof, a reasonable doubt would have been raised as to whether the statue was the work of an ancient expert. There was a piece chipped off the hoof, and although it was small, a fiber or grain could be seen in the material. The beautiful figure was not bronze. It was only papier mache and was made in this city.

"While it is not becoming in me," said the proprietor of the store, after the women had gone out, "to talk about my customers, yet I can't help it sometimes. Why, I have to laugh in people's faces frequently when I see how easily they are deceived by appearances. They make up their minds that things are genuine because they look so. This is why bric-a-brac buyers are so easily gulled. If they are pleased, that is enough, and they will pay four or five prices for something that suits their fancy. All the customers are not inclined that way, however. I had an old woman in here this morning to whom I gave some facts and figures about an old Venetian mirror. She drank in my long story with wondering eyes and then offered $3 for the glass.

SOME PRACTICAL PEOPLE.

"There are some practical people, who do not place any value upon age and association. They are not fit subjects for the bric-a-brac dealer. The business is not what it used to be, and, unless you have something really fine, it is hard to get a good price. Overproduction has flattened the trade. For every genuine relic of the olden time there are 100 imitations. Bric-a-brac from China and Japan was the rage, and the importations were heavy until about a year ago. Then the factories in Birmingham and other places turned the goods out so rapidly that China and Japan were overstocked. There was a big run on Japanese bronzes. They were supposed to be hammered in Japan, but were really stamped by machinery in England. Americans like to be humbugged, and the largest part of the stuff is sent here.

"Here is a case of swords, representing the style of every country—foils, daggers and Toledo blades. They are all supposed to be ancient, but are made in Sheffield. The world is full of Damascus blades made in that enterprising town. Here is a real Damascus blade. It will cut without a sigh of injury metal that would turn the edge of the Sheffield imitations. There is little demand for old armor and weapons now.

BOGUS IVORY AND EBONY.

"The deception practised in ivory goods would make one believe that there was no honesty. Beautiful ivory carvings, that are said to have been picked up in the ruins of an ancient city, are molded from a mixture of bone dust and gum, which takes on a high polish. Acids put on the stain of age. A mother of pearl is made from a celluloid that would deceive an expert, but it becomes brittle and breaks easily. Here is an elegant piece of cabinet work. See how fine the lines are. Yet it is an imitation made of wood and glue, pressed into molds which are cut so well that the fine lines of genuine carving are brought out clearly. I have seen this pressed work so fine that even experts have pronounced it real.

"Genuine ebony is highly prized, and there is a good demand for it. What is the use of trying to find it when an excellent imitation is made from beechwood? The wood is first dried, then boiled in nitrate of iron and soaked in logwood. The weight and shade are almost perfect. Old clocks that have moon faces and solve a variety of astronomical problems, and are supposed to have told the time in some ancient manor, stand in many hallways today and seem to tell the story of other days. They are nearly all made in this city, and are hardly old enough to tick. When there was a rage for mummy cases, decorated in the fashion and colors of the time when Egypt was a power among the nations, more than enough to supply the demand were made in this wicked town. In fact, everything that is worth having in bric-a-brac is made here, and made well."

The Ministerial Candidate.

[Harper's Magazine.]

I was traveling up the Ohio River one day last fall on the packet Fairy. The day was very cold. A party of us were sitting around the stove in the lower cabin whilst the boat landed at some little way-side landing-place to take on freight and passengers.

Presently a tall, gaunt old man, evidently a new arrival, came up, with his carpet-bag in hand, which he deposited between his knees as he sat down and spread out his long knotty fingers before the door of the stove to warm them.

Casting his keen gray eyes around him as he did so, he suddenly espied the thin, cadaverous-looking young fellow, dressed all in black broadcloth, who was sitting next to me in the circle around the stove.

"Why, howdy, Lemmel?" the old man said in the heartiest way. "I hardly knowed yer. How's the folks?"

"P-pr pr-pretty w-w-well, M-M-Mr. J-J-Johnson," replied the young man, stuttering miserably, as he submitted to the hearty hand-shaking which the old man had reached across several of us to effect.

"F nished yer schoolin' yet?" inquired he.

"Y-y-y-es, s-s-s-sir, replied the young man, with difficulty.

"Waal, what bizzness air ye in now?" asked the old fellow, eyeing the dress of his young friend rather curiously.

"I-I-I'm st-st-st studying for the m-m-ministry-"

"Phew-ee!" exclaimed the old man, in a long whistle of intense surprise. "Waal, now, Lemmel," he said, after a while, "that's about the last line uv bizzness I'd 'a ever thought of attemptin' to tackle ef I'd a-been in yere place. Whatever put it into yore head?"

"I-I-I had a v-ve-very st-st-strong call, M-M-r. Jo-Jo-Jo-Johnson," explained the young man, with a slight flush on his pale, weak face.

"You might 'a had a dozen calls," returned the old man, dryly; "but if I'd a-been you I'd be switched if I'd a-come."

An "audible smile" ran around the circle at the old man's wit, which he, however, never noticed. His young friend made no response to his last suggestion, whilst he continued in a dry, anxious tone:

"It beats me, Lemmel, to know how you 'low, even conceedin' the call, to get through with the rest of the bizness."

"Th-th-the L-L-Lord will p-put the w-w-words into m-my m-m-mouth," gasped the poor young fellow, stuttering worse than ever under the keen gray eyes of the old man.

"He'll have to do more 'an that sonny," said the old man, pityingly. "After He puts 'em thar, blamed ef He won't hev to send somebody else along to pull 'em out."

The young ministerial candidate retired to his state room, and was seen no more.

A Great Peanut State.

[Toledo Commercial.]

Virginia is a great peanut State. The crop this year is estimated at 1,600,000 bushels. Nine factories clean and sort this crop for the market. Virginia was formerly counted the mother of Presidents. She keeps up her motherly character by furnishing the little ones of the country with peanuts. There is nothing like being a stately mother.
